PROFESSED HEIRESS EVICTED FROM HOME.

Mrs. Eva Depierris Unable to Pay Rent and Wanted Life's Necessities.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Nov. 2.-Although claiming to be an heiress to a fortune amounting to several millions of dollars, Mrs. Eva Slaven Deplerris has been evicted from the house in which she lived for nonpayment of rent, and says she is actually in want for the necessities of life.

Mrs. Deplerris is a daughter of Moses A. Slaven, who, with his brother, Henry B. Slaven, formed the American Contracting and Dredging Company. This concern closed a deal with De Lesseps by which it was to do most of the work on the Panama Canal. The brothers made enormous fortunes for their part of the work in digging that famous ditch in which so many mil-lions were sunk. When Eva was young, so the papers recite, her mother died and her father married again. He died on September 14, 1886, leaving a will in which his property, estimated at $5.000,000 went to his widow. Eva, who was the only child, was being educated in a convent in Montreal at that time.

In 1894 she began suit in this ciy in an effort to establish a second and later will than that which gave the $5,000,000 to her stepmother. On April 17, 1895, the court decided that the existence of such a will had not been proved. This suit was entered and decided argulat the daugher after her step. decided against the daughter after her step-mother had been married to Henry R. mer partner in the Panama contracts.

The suit by the daughter was begun after she had been married to Victor B. Depierris, a son of the proprietor of the Hotel Bayard, at Broadway and Fifty-fourth streets. Her marriage estranged her from her stepmother, as Victor Depierris was steward in his father's hotel.

Mrs. Deplerris, after losing her case, lived with her husband in the Hotel Bayard until a little more than a year ago, when they separated by mutual agreement, she taking her daughter Elise, now 7 years old, and he agreeing to pay $55 a month for their support. On April 16, this year, Bertrand Depleris, who owned the hotel died, leaving property valued at $709,000 to his widow. Mary Etta Depleris. Victor and another son contested the father's will, but the case was settled out of court. Victor then dis-

"She and her child have been dispossessed and would be in the street if it were not for old friends. She has applied at the Slaven home for aid many times, and has been refused. The following correspondence with her husband's mother shows that she has no chance of recognition in her old home there either. My client, who is a highly educated young woman, feels her position so keenly that she oprefers her present address with friends be not given.

The correspondence, which forms part of the legal testimony in this unusual case, includes a long letter from the destitute woman to her mother-in-law. In it the deserted wife wrote that, having been rebuffed in her appeal for aid, she was about to send her child and nurse to the hotel to ask for food and shelter. The writer said she knew all about the settlement of the Deplerris will case and that cordial relations existed between her husband and his mother. She also said that she knew Victor had a bill of sale of the furniture in the hotel, valued at $20,000. She also mentioned that her husband had paid her $15 a month, as agreed, up to September 1, "which was about the time when you engendered the feeling he evidently now has against us." The writer then appealed, for the sake of the grandchild, for shelter.

The brief reply was a denial of the statements made by the young wife and a refusal to consent to the mother and child living in the hotel.

The captain's visage changed as he furiously gave the order to steam ahead, but the passengers laughed uproariously.

WILLIAM COFFEY IS AGAIN IN JAIL.

This Time a Young Woman Prefers a Charge of Assault, Which He Denies.

BEFORE COURTS TEN YEARS.

First Gained Notoriety for His Prosecution of Whitecaps, Who Beat Himself and Wife Unmercifully.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 2.-William Coffey of whitecap fame is again in jail at Jasper, having been arrested a few days ago at a small station on the Southern coad near Huntingburg, on a charge of at-road near Huntingours, on a charge of at-tempted assault, preferred by Miss Ella Smith of Ireland.

It is said that to try all the cases in which Coffey has been plaintiff or defend-ant would take a continuous session of court for a rolld year.

Coffey first came into prominence when he was whipped by whitecaps in December, 1890. He was living with his wife, Mary, in a little log hot near Elisworth, sixteen miles east of here, near the Crawford

About midnight on December 4, 1859, while he was at home asleep with his wife and 4-year-old girl, a noise of running men was heard, and his door was broken in by a cross-tie. A dogor masked men rushed in-to the room, and, without allowing him to dress, dragged him out into the cold night. He was taken about 200 feet from the house and tied to a tree, after being blindfolded. His shirt was stripped off his back, and the leader whom Coffee always maintained was leader, whom Coffey always maintained was John H. "No. 1" stepped forward, picked up a strong hickory withe, and gave Coffey five strong hickory withe, and garden claimed cligorous blows on the back. Coffey claimed that "No. I" was Thomas Highelt. "No. I," at the command of the leader, was followed by "No. 2," "No. 2," "No. 4" and "No.

Coffey was indicted for perjury, but escaped. He wandered around and was arrested at Vincennes for stealing a turkey and sent to the penitentiary for a year. Upon the expiration of his sentence he was arrested on an old charge of perjury at Petersburg. The jury, after hearing the evidence for a week, were out for three days and falled to agree. After this the case was continued a time or two and, after Coffey had been in jail for nearly a year, he was released by the Judge on his own bond. The officers hoped he would leave and never come buck for trial, but on the first day of the next court he was on hand. After an attempt to get the witnesses, the case was noised.

Treuble With His Wife.

Coffee had three cases for damages against each of the parties charged with taking part in whitecapping him, but never recovered anything. He and his wife separated, and he was arrested on the charge of sending a letter containing obscene matter through the mails to her. He was taken to Evansville and lodged in jail, and after an examination by Commissioner Wartman was bound over to the United States District Court at Indianapolis and sent to the Marion County jail to await trial. After laying in jail for about three months he was found not guilty. Returning to Inubots County, he had his wife arrested on the charge of kidnaping and sued her for divorce. She beat him in both cases. A second application for divorce was more successful, but he was prohibited from marrying again for two years. Notwithstanding this order he married again inside of ten days. He was arrested on a technicality.

of court, but beat the case on a technicality.

Since then he has figured in two or three cases of some sort at every term of court. He is about 25 years old, is a hard worker and can do as much manual labor in a day as any man in the county. A few nights ago Miss Ella Smith of Ireland claims he broke into her room where she was sleeping with some younger brothers and siterand attempted to assault her. An outery from the children, however, frightened him and he fied. Her father and mother were both away and this was about midnight. She swore out a warrant against him. He is now in jail awaiting trial on this charge and denies that he is guilty.

Among others he ciaimed to recognize James Ellis, Levi Ellis, Levi Jacobs, and John and Wesley Kellams. All these were prominent and well-respected mer.

At the January term of court Judge Oscar M. Welborn gave pointed instructions to the Grand Jury and directed them to return bills against all the whitecappers if any evidence could be secured against them. Both Coffey and his wife appeared before the Grand Jury and identified each of the guspected men and several others, but the Grand Jury refused to return any bills.

Agains Beaten.

During the following spring and summer there were numerous whitevap outrages along the Dubois and Crawford County line, about twenty people being whipped. Excitement was at fever heat. Coffey publicly announced that he would give the gang 10 if they would come back and try to whip him again. In August, 1891, both he and his wife were taken out of bed, stripped, tied to trees and given a fearful beating. The whitecapp told Coffey that they wanted the life that he had promised, and that if he did not keep his mouth shut this was only haif what he would get next time. They then mounted their horses and left at top speed, going toward Birdseye.

Coffey and his wife made their way to his mother's house, a quarter of a mile distant, where Coffey fell fainting in her door from loss of blood. His Hie was despaired of for more than three weeks. He finally recovered and he and his wife appeared before the September Grand Jury and testified that the same men whipped lifm who had whipped him the year before. Though Judge Welborn gave charge after charge and time and again sent them back to their rooms, the juriors refused to return any whitecap indictments. John H. Brown, whom Coffey ident

During all this time the newspapers all over the country were urging the prosecution of the whitecappers and were wanting to know why it was not done. As soon as court was over Coffey was sent for by Denity Prosecutor Richard M. Milburn and affidavitis were made against all the parties whom Coffey claimed to recognize. All were arrested and demanded a change from Judge Welborn. This was granted and Thomas Duncan of Princeton was appointed special Judge to try the cases. The first case to be tried was that of John H. Brown. The trial lasted a week. More than fifty witnesses testified that Coffey's reputation After being out twenty-four hours the peniteniary. The next cases to be tried were those of Thomas Highill and his son. William. Each occupied a week. Thomas was found not guilty and William was given two years in State Prison. He served his time and is now living in the eastern part of this county. Henry Sutton pleaded illness and his case was broken and that unless something desperate was done that all of the defendants would go to the Pentientiary, as there were three cases against each defendant, two for whipping Coffey and one for whipping the was a state of the game, it is said, one of the accused men offered Coffey 17,00 If he would make an affidavit that he had nothing to do with the wollyping and was not present. Lords, Ladies, Princes and Prin cesses to Be in the Casts, and Society Is Interested.

SPECIAL BY CABLE.

London, Nov. 2.- The success of the subription balls is quite assured. Many smart people have already taken up the idsa. Among the ladies who have given their names as patronesses are the Marchioness of Hastings, the Countess Ronney, the Honorable Mrs. George Hill Trevor, Lady McPherson Grant, Lady Brunner, Mrs. Walker Monroe and many others well known in the social set.

Miss Audrey Campbell, who is a relative believe, of Lady Audrey Buller, is busy getting together a smart band of amateur actors, with one or two professionals by way of strengthening the cast, to give a way of strengthening the cast, to give a series of performances in Albert Hall during the forthcoming Christmas holidays, in aid of the funds for the Soldiers' and Sallors' Help Society. The Princess Christian has already given special patronage to the scheme. The farcical comedy "Niobe" is to be produced. Six performances will be given under the direction of Mr. H. Paulton, Jr., who will himself appear in his own well-known role, Peter Amos Dunn. That is to be followed by six performances of the American musical coinedy, "My Sweetheart."

I also hear that when the court once met the ball of gayety rolling, amateur theat-ricals may be looked for at Windsor on a scale never before seen there, or in any of the royal palaces.

The Kirg, as is known, with his love for picturesque effects, and his enthusiasm for the drama, always takes the keenest interest in amateur theatricais, and numbers among his friends many very able actors, of whom Captain Ponsonby is one.

But in the royal circle itself, there are at least three actors of marked ability, who would have liked much greater scope for their marked capacities in that respect than is afforded them under the rather rigid regime of the late court. These are the Princess Henry of Battenberg, whose style has been likened to that of Mrs. Kendal, and her two children, Princess Victoria Eugenie and Prince Leopold.

Both of these young people are really born players, and had fate placed them elsewhere in the world there is little doubt in the opinion of those who know them, and what they can do, that they would have made their mark on the professional stage.
